Overview

- ★ Gaumukh is the terminus of the Gangotri Glacier, which is the source of the Bhagirathi River and the Ganges River. The location is in the Uttarkashi district of Uttarakhand, India, at a height of 13,200 feet (4,023 metres). Gaumukh is a Hindi word that means "cow's mouth." Initially, the snout appeared to resemble the "Mouth of a Cow," according to some theories. Gaumukh is situated at the base of the Gangotri Glacier, while Tapovan is located above it. With an estimated volume of over 27 cubic kilometres, it is one of the largest in the Himalayas.
- ★ Along with Gangotri, Gaumukh Tapovan is a popular Hindu pilgrimage site and trekking destination. Surround yourself with mountains in Tapovan's giant meadows.

DAY 1

★ Dehradun to Gangotri

Your adventure begins bright and early at 6 AM as you set out from Dehradun. Today's drive will cover approximately 250 km, winding through the majestic mountains for about 8-9 hours, with the aim of reaching Gangotri by evening. Along the way, you'll pass through Mussoorie, a popular hill station known for its panoramic views of the Shivalik Range. After breakfast and some quick sightseeing through Dhanaulti and Chamba, you'll head towards Uttarkashi, a sacred town nestled on the banks of the Bhagirathi River. Known as the 'Kashi of the North,' Uttarkashi is home to the famous Kashi Vishwanath Temple. Continuing onward, the scenic drive brings you to the quaint village of Harsil, renowned for its apple orchards and peaceful ambiance. After soaking in the serene vibes, the journey concludes in Gangotri. You can explore the local market and capture some great memories before settling in for a homemade dinner and resting for the night at the guest house.

★ Trek from Gangotri to Bhojwasa

When you finally do fall asleep, you will be greeted by awe-inspiring vistas of sun rays reflecting off of mountain peaks, and you will be eager to continue your journey. This will be a short walk lasting around two to three hours, with a gradual increase in elevation. At this point, the path opens out, providing you with a greater view of the Bhagirathi peaks. There will be sections of the landslip that are more suitable for walking on than others. After completing the hike, you will arrive to Bhojwassa, a level region that serves as the location for your overnight accommodations in tents. The region is rife with Bhopatra trees, which are more commonly known as birch trees. These trees were used in the production of the Bhojwasa. This is the most open and expansive area of the valley, and it offers the greatest view of Shivling Mountain. In addition to a number of residences designed in the form of igloos, there is also an ashram, a police station, and a rest house. These other options are open to you during your stay here today, but you will need permission to use them. After lunch, take some time to unwind at the campground, and then prepare to spend a night in the tents when it's below freezing outside.

DAY 3

★ Bhojwasa to Tapovan via Gaumukh

Fuel up with breakfast and prepare for one of the most exciting legs of the journey—the trek to Tapovan. It's a 6 km trek through some rocky terrain, so pack lunch, plenty of water, and snacks for the way.

To cross the river en route, you'll use a manually operated trolley—a thrilling experience unique to mountain treks. After the crossing, you'll walk through a rockfall-prone area before reaching the Akash Ganga River, which you may need to cross by foot, depending on the water level.

The final ascent to Tapovan is steep but rewarding. Tapovan is known for its spiritual significance, as many sadhus (hermits) come here for meditation. It's also the base camp for expeditions to Mount Shivling, which dominates the landscape. Take in the views of Mt. Meru and the Bhagirathi peaks before resting for the night at this serene campsite.

DAY 4

★ Tapovan to Bhojwasa via Gaumukh

Start your day early to catch the sun lighting up the Himalayan peaks, especially the sacred Mt. Shivling. After breakfast, the descent begins as you make your way back towards Bhojwasa, retracing your steps.

En route, you'll visit the Gaumukh Glacier, the source of the Ganges. Gaumukh, meaning "cow's mouth," is where the river Bhagirathi emerges from the glacier. Even if you're not religious, the sheer magnitude of the glacier will leave you in awe.

The return journey takes you back through the same rocky terrain and landslide-prone sections, so tread carefully. Enjoy the peaceful surroundings as you approach the Bhojwasa campsite for another night under the stars.

DAY 5

★ Bhojwasa to Gangotri

This marks the final trekking day as you journey back to Gangotri. Covering approximately 14 km in 6-7 hours, the route takes you back through the pristine landscapes of Gangotri National Park.

As you approach Gangotri, bid farewell to the towering peaks that have accompanied you throughout the trek. Reaching Gangotri by late afternoon, relax with a warm dinner and reminisce about your journey through the mighty Himalayas before resting for the night.

★ Departure for Dehradun

Enjoy your last morning tea in the tranquil setting of Gangotri before packing up for the return drive to Dehradun. The 8-9 hour ride takes you once more through the scenic landscapes of Uttarakhand. Arriving in Dehradun by 5 PM, this marks the end of your incredible adventure, leaving you with unforgettable memories of your time in the Himalayas.
